

Reimagining Partnerships to Enhance Lives

NPI Project Manager 80-100% (a)

80-100% permanent position by agreement

Elos Medtech is one of the world's leading development and manufacturing partners for companies in the medical technology sector. With sites in Switzerland, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, China, and the United States, we specialize in the production of implants, instruments, and components for medical technologies.

We are looking for individuals who share our values — passion, trust, and results — so we can grow together and achieve even greater success. If you are ready to give your best and join an environment that values collaboration and commitment, we look forward to receiving your application.

For our site in Hölstein, we are looking for a NPI Project Manager 80-100% (a)

What we are looking for:

- Lead New Product Introduction (NPI) projects from development transfer through industrialization and commercial production, ensuring achievement of project objectives related to quality, timeline, and budget
- Drive cross-functional collaboration across R&D, Quality, Operations, Supply Chain, and customer organizations to ensure successful project execution and product launch
- Proactively identify project risks, challenges, and opportunities, and implement effective mitigation and contingency plans
- Establish and maintain alignment among internal and external stakeholders, providing transparent communication and regular project status reporting.
- Monitor and manage project performance, including schedule adherence, quality compliance, validation progress, and manufacturing readiness
- Coordinate validation and qualification activities in collaboration with Quality Assurance, ensuring compliance with applicable medical device regulations and industry standards
- Serve as the primary technical interface between customers and internal teams, facilitating the resolution of product, process, and manufacturing-related topics

What makes you a great fit

- Degree in Mechanical Engineering, Medical Technology, or a related technical field
- Experience in Project Management in a quality regulated environment, preferably in the field of medical devices or diagnostics technology
- Strong project management skills with experience leading R&D projects in the MedTech sector
- Strong leadership skills and experience coordinating cross-functional teams
- Excellent analytical thinking and problem-solving abilities
- Good communication skills and team oriented
- Fluent in German and English, both written and spoken

Why you'll love working with us

- An open company culture, short decision-making processes, and an open-door philosophy
- 6 weeks of vacation
- Attractive social benefits
- Opportunities for individual development
- Regular team events
- Loyalty bonuses
